Across The Country, Freeze Supporters "Make The Freeze The Issue"

As both political parties try to gain and consolidate votes by addressing our nation's deep longing for an end to the nuclear arms race, concerned citizen will launch a national campaign October 12-14 to "Make the Freeze the Issue."

"The issue to be addressed in electoral debate is a nuclear weapons FREEZE. "The issue is not a promise of six months of negotiations while weapons become faster and more accurate nor is the issue a last-minute dialogue with Soviet leadership," said Frank Seal, Director of Sixth Sense, a Tacoma group working for sensible solutions to the nuclear arms race

Here in Tacoma, members of Sixth Sense will dot the streets of Tacoma with signs drawing voter's attention to the urgency of the Freeze.

In 47 states, events ranging from large rallies to educational forums will launch the nationwide FREEZE Weekend Campaign to "Make the FREEZE the Issue,"

In Chicago, a Mid-West rally drawing from six states will be addressed by the Reverend Jesse Jackson, former US Ambassador to China Leonard Woodcock, and others, while New York State Governor Mario Cuomo will kick off a nuclear weapons conference in Albany, N.Y. Banners for the Freeze will be draped on Philadelphia city Hall and a human chain will cover the six and a half miles between Detroit's two armories.

For information on state FREEZE Weekend activities can be obtained from Sixth Sense, 2046 Six Avenue, 272-5204

Homeless People

A record $100 million will be spent this year to provide food and shelter for the growing numbers of single homeless people in New York, but city officials say they still have no solution for those who live in the street and refuse assistance.

These people, the hard-core homeless, have become one of the city's most visible social problems.

Once mainly found sleeping in parks and in abandoned buildings, thousands of these destitute men and women now live in doorways or on sidewalks throughout the city, including such affluent areas as Madison Avenue and Park Avenue.

The street people, many of whom are chronically mentally ill, make up only a small percentage of the city's homeless population. But because they have become an inescapable presence in the lives of most New Yorkers, they are a major concern as city officials prepare to house and feed record numbers of homeless people this winter.

If projections prove correct, there will be nights when nearly 10,000 homeless men and women will be housed in the city's public shelters an in the 90 churches and synagogues that provide beds and services for the homeless.

Kappas Urges Reagan To Remove Chairman Of U.S. Civil Rights Commision

"Clarence Pendleton, Jr., Chairman of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, recently complained to President Reagan because the President met privately with Blacks in his administration,: according to Robert L. Gordon, Grand Polemarch of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc.

"Mr. Pendleton has also complained about the government setting aside a certain percentage of government contracts for minority vendors," noted Grand Polemarch Gordon. "The President's meeting with Blacks in his administration is not only beneficial for the President, but necessary for the President to better understand Black Americans despite Mr Pendleton's assertion that he will never knowingly attend any meeting the President or his administration convenes exclusively for Blacks," said Grand Polemarch Gordon.

Government set aside programs absolutely necessary to remedy the many years of refusal of government contracts for minority vendors.

"Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. urges President Reagan to remove Mr. Pendleton, as a member of the United States Civil Rights Commission and replace him with a person who at least believes in the fundamental purpose of the Commission," said Grand Polemarch Gordon.

The fraternity has adopted a resolution in response to Mr. Pendleton's actions which will be forwarded to President Reagan, the Congressional Black Caucus, Clarence Pendleton and other national organizations.

ISAIAH 53: 1&2

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a root out of dry ground.

He hath no form nor comiliness: and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

WORDS OF WISDOM

ISAIAH 30

Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord that take counsel, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my spirit, that they may ad sin to sin:

That walk to go down into Egypt, and have not asked at my mouth; to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh, and to trust in the shadow of Egypt!

Therefore shall the strength of Pharaoh be your shame, and the trust in the shadow of Egypt your confusion.

For his princes were at Zoan, and his ambassadors came to Hanes.

They were all ashamed of a people that could not profit them, nor be an help nor profit, but a shame, and also a reproach

They were all ashamed of a people that could not profit them, nor be an help nor profit, but a shame, and also a reproach

The burden of the beasts of the south: into the land of trouble and anguish, from whence come the young and old lion, the viper and fiery flying serpent, they will carry their riches upon the shoulders of young asses, and their treasures upon the bunches of camels, to a people that shall not profit them.

For the Egyptians shall help in vain, and to no purpose: therefore have I cried concerning this, Their strength is to sit still.

Now go, write it before them in a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for the time to come for ever and ever:

That this is a rebellious people, lying children, children that will not hear the law of the Lord:

Which say to the seers, See not; and to the prophets, Phophesy not unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophesy deceits:

Get you out of the way, turn aside out of the path, cause the Holy One of Israel to cease from befire us

Wherefore thus saith the Holy One of Israel, Because ye despise this word, and trust in oppression and perverseness, and stay thereon:

Therefore this iniquity shall be to you as a brech ready to fall, swelling out in a high wall, whose breaking cometh suddenly at an instant.

Mimbres Pottery Ancient Art Of The American Southwest

The most comprehensive exhibition ever assembled of this unique native American art, can be seen at the Tacoma Art Museum in Tacoma, WA., now thru November 13. It brings together approximately 125 outstanding examples of Mimbres bowls, which are painted with a broad range of distinctive geometric and figurative images. These vessels are representative of the remarkable artistic achievements of this ancient pueblo culture, which, until recently, have been relatively unknown except to a few archaeologists, art historians, artists, and private collectors. Organized by The American Federation of Arts (AFA), the exhibition and its accompanying publication have been made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Naitonal Endowment for the Humanities, and the Mabel Pew Myrin Trust.

From the 6th to the 12th centuries A.D., the Mimbres people lived in small farming villages in the isolated oasis-like valley of the Mimbres River, in what is now Southwest New Mexico During this period these people developed a painted pottery tradition unprecedented in its originality and expressive character, which flourished from about 900 to 1150. The paintings on the pottery provide a glimpse into the life and beliefs of this now extinct culture, which mysteriously disappeared in about 1150.

Giving And Receiving

There are those who would claim that their is no such thing as christian criticism. I occur that criticism which is destructive of other person, is completely inconsistent with the way of christ. Jesus himself was a critic of others. I don't believe that there is anyway for you and me to live this life without criticizing others, but we must be very careful in making a criticism.

All criticism which is christian must be made in the context of love for the person criticized. Paul uses the word "edification." that means "building up" others persons.

Jesus never criticised any persons except to lift and improve the other's life.

All christian criticism is built on complete honesty and justice. You can never know all the facts about another person. You must be honest enough to get as many of the facts as you can if you truly desire to make any christian criticism.

Christian criticism always leaves the door open for the Christian to improve.

No criticism that you and I ever make can be final Only God can make final judgements. If your criticism is really to be constructive and helpful to other persons then it ought to challenge, to inspire those persons to newer and greater heights.

Christian criticism must always be in a spirit of humili ty . No matter what you may criticize in another person, You stand just as much in need of help as does he, even though perhaps in some other area of life, Christian criticism is never made from the level of superior to inferior. Christian criticism is always one sinner standing with another sinner on level ground beneath a cross.

It is much easier to constructively criticize others, even in a christian spirit, than it is to receive criticism in christian manner. Suggested here are a few positive ways to deal with criticism.

(1) Evaluate the christian to see if there is anything valid in it at all, if there is any truth, profit from it, use it as an experience of growth.

(2) Take your criticism, realizing that you are not in this world to please men. It does not really matter whether you ever please another person, because he/she a critic or not. (see Galations 1:10).

(3) As criticism comes your way realize that by taking it you may be able to help your critics. There are persons who need to get rid of the hostility which is in them. God's spirit can not work in the life of a man who is on the defensive. So if you can become like a blotter, and ansorb the critic's hostility, you may be taking the fire out of the dragon's mouth and putting it out.

(4) Be certain you keep a sense of humor. Humor always cushions the shock of criticism. In reality humor is the ability to get off and objectively look at self and laugh about it.

(5) When you face the criticism which comes to you in this society, don't be surprised. Jesus has promised that you are going to be criticized. Take it in humility but don't take it with humiliation. Don't let it crush you. don't let it steamroller you. Jesus has stated that he who live according to Christian convictions will be criticized

Milan, Italy, - No single look dominates the Italian fashion collections for spring and summer, which some people find upsetting. Freedom of choice can be disturbing. what most designers do share is a lighthearted feeling expressed in simple shapes, cheerful colors and an arresting display of new printed fabrics. These all contribute to the gaiety of the warm-weather clothes as the schedule of fashion show openings here reaches the midpoint Lagerfeld, whose collection of ready-to-wear for Fendi has been considerably expanded this year, is one who approves of the diversity "Short is not new - there was short before," he said over a plate of risotto after his show "Pants are not new. Long is not new. What is new is how you mix them up."

He had arrived from Paris in the morning, just in time to guide his clothes down the runway and take his bow wearing a conventional brown suit and his usual ponytail hairdo.

His show was a mix of current elements in fashion and some old ones that he will make new again. It was an utterly satisfying melange. Short skirts button down the back and cup the hips Long skirts follow the body to the knees, where they break out into a flre to the top of the ankles.

Students Invited To Participate In Exchange Program

High Schools across Washington state are currently being invited to participate in two international student exchange programs which will allow four outstanding high school juniors to spend the summer overseas, according to U S Senators Daniel J. Evans and Slade Gorton.

Under the Finland and Japan U.S Senate Youth Exchange Programs, each U S. Senator is allowed to name two high school juniors, annually, to participate in the summer exchange program for Youth for Understanding. One of the students will travel to Japan, the other to Finland and are selected through a rigorous, merit-oriented selection process.

"The benefits to the high schools is significant also as increased understanding and interest in international relations is gained."

ST JOHN 5
JESUS ANSWERS
FOR HIMSELF

But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work

Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

That all men should honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that hereth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed form death unto life

Testament To A Friend

I liked Charlie Rose when I first met him in 1978. He was the program director of a television station in Texas and he also hosted a syndicated TV series called The Charlie Rose Show. There was a resemblance in the format to the Phil Donahue Show and you got a feeling of sensitive concern from Charlie as you do from Donahue.

When we met, I was in Texas trying to sell Charlie on putting my series on his station's schedule. He was very accomodating and invited me to be a guest on his national series. On the day we taped, I remember following Charlie Heston before a mostly White female audience.

But Rose persisted in asking me questions that elicited my point of view, not one that you pull out for White consumption because you've been forced to . In short, it was a good session because of Rose's sensitivity and perception of race--and racism.

Believe me, I've been around enough to know when a White is playing the game and when it's for real; the nuances are unmistakable. And Rose's were unmistakably genuine.

We next met about a year or two later at WRC-TV, the Washington, D.C.-NBC affiliate, where he and I were hosting our own series. Charlie had moved his Rose series to a more central location. He continued to book Blacks regulary as guests.

Many a day, we exchanged pointers and recommended guests to one anouther. I can also tell you that there was a small army of so-called "network stars"--Black and White-who would not speak or acknowledge another person's physical presence.

To make a long story short, Charlie Rose is OK. And any reasonable Black person knows exactly what that means.

Charlie Rose is also quick with a smile and a sense of humor--which I suspect has gotten him into hot water.

According to the Washington Post, Charlie is accused of mispronoucing "Negro." It came out "Nigrah" when he was introducing Howard Rollins ("The Soldiers Story") on Nightwatch, the all-night CBS news and feature service.

"I tangled the word as I pronounced the theater group's name (The Negro Ensemble Company)," Rose explained. But the rumor that he had used a racial eptihet took on a life of its own inside the CBS station in DC. Only the army exceeds a TV station in producing rumors.

Anyway, Charlie was called on the carpet. Before 50 staffers, Rose apologized for any perceived intolerance and, in tears, explained: "It was painful to me that anybody would think I would do such a thing "

I believe Rose because I know him personally. I also believe him because I talk to cameras also. And I can tell you that I am too embarrassed to tell many of the words that have come out of my mouth.

The job calls for total concentration and you learn that the distance a thought travels from the brain to the lips is , sometimes, greater than the distance between the two.

Nobody, but nobody, knows why we make "slips" of speech. Freud speculated that it had something to do with repressed thoughts in the unconscious mind. Social taboos are kept hidden there. I'm told. However, slips have embarrassed all of us at some time.

Perhaps, Rose's unconscious it took over and violated the social custom-which, according to Freudian psycho-analytic theory, is what it likes to do, but is prevented from doing by the superego (the conscience). But, as I said, nobody knows.

But I do know this. Charlie Rose is a good and decent man--certainly not mean-spirited. And to accuse him of being a racist is to ignore the way he lives his life and those of us he has helped when out of the spotlight.

"Clearly when you talk about the quality of human dignity, it's a heartfelt and emotional experience," Rose added

In the halls of media, Blacks need all of the friends they can get. And Charlie rose is a friend.

First Step To An Urban Policy

One major issue that should be central in this election campaign is the development of a national urban policy. Talk of such a policy has been in the air for two decades, but we have never had a developed, coordinated policy designed to stem urban decline.

Such a policy is essential, not simply because so many large, older cities are under stress, but also because the boom has ended for many of the newer, fast-growing urban centers which must accommodate large populations without an adequate infrastructure.

The uncoordinated way we deal with urban issues is reflected in the makeup of congressional committees that must deal with legislation affecting cities. Bills go to a wide variety of committees, ranging from Banking to Public Works, none of which has as its primary constituency the nation's cities.

Now, pending legislation would create a House Select Committee on Cities. Such a Committee could help focus national attention on urban needs and integrate urban issues into the context of national policies.

Three out of four Americans live in cities and it is cities where plant shutdowns have had the most devastating effect; where blacks are most highly concentrated; where teenage unemployment is most serious; where a host of other national problems have the greatest impact. It is in the cities too, where cuts in food stamps, housing aid, and other programs that invest in human resources have been so devastating.

A Select Committee on Cities would examine the effect of federal programs on cities, assess urban infrastructure needs, and analyze employment training programs, tax structures and demographic trends to weigh their effect on urban American.

The Committee would also specifically be charged with reviewing the Marshall Plan's rebuilding of postwar Europe to determine its applicability to present urban problems

Two decades ago, Whitney Young called for a Domestic Marshall Plan that would do for the cities what the original Plan did for our friends and even our former enemies in Wartorn Europe. Europe's economic revival can be traced to the help given by the Marshall Plan, which also helped America through expanding trade and markets for our products.

A Domestic Marshall Plan could well have similar results, with stronger urban economies, expanded employment, and a legislation that would create a Select Committee on Cities specifically includes the mandate to study the urban implications of the Marshall Plan mode.

Such a Committee would not be a panacea. It would be non-legislative; that is, it would not have legislation directed it for approval But it would still serve to attract national attention to urban problems in ways that could result in legislation affecting cities for the better, and to set otherwise isolated bills in the overall context of urban needs.

That's important role, especially at a time when urban health is equated with fiscal health Some people seem to feel that if a city is no longer hovering on the brink of bankruptcy, then it is in good shape. But fiscal soundness often hides deteriorating services, spreading poverty and homelessness, and a crumbling infrastructure that chases businesses and jobs out of town.

Creation of a Select Committee on the Cities could well be the first step in formulating a coordinated national policy that ends the neglect of urban America

High Court Moves To Right Another Reagan Legacy

Since the day Ronald Reagan was elected President, a number of Black leaders, this writer among them, have stressed that one of the most devasting effects on Black people coming out of a Reagan administration would be manipulation of the Supreme Court through the appointment of ultra-conservative and reactionary justices to that high body.

We concluded that Reagan might get a chance to make a number of appointments to the Supreme Court during his first term by applying simple arithmetic logic. when he was elected, five of the nine Supreme Court justices were above 70 years of age.

There, of course, was a slight possibility that Reagan might defy prevailing opinion and appoint moderates or liberals to the High Court This wishful thinking however, was soon put to rest when the President got the chance to make his first and only appointment during this term.

It is doubtful if there is a single student of the judiciary who doesn't agree that Sandra Day O'Connor is among the most conservative members of the Court.

Moreover, in appointing O'Connor, Reagan employed his usual rock throwing, hand hiding manner: He took credit for advancing the rights of women while, in fact, pushing back the rights of all Americans.

Although we escaped the debacle of multiple Reagan Supreme Court appointments during his first term, if the polls are anywhere near correct odds of our escaping a second time are miniscule indeed. The ages of the present members suggest as much: Warren Burger, 77; William J Brennan, 78, Byron White, 67; Thurgood Marshall, 76; Harry F Blackmum, 75; Lewis F Powell, 77; William H. Rehnquist, 60; John Stevens; and Sandra Day O'Connor, 54

That's right, five of the nine justices are 75 or above

Included in these five are the two liberals, Marshall and Brennan, and one of the three moderates, Blackmum.

Additionally, two of the four conservatives, the two who often are praised for their integrity, Chief Justice Burger and Powell, are likewise over 75.

The above, indeed, paints a dismal picture. If Reagan is reelected, he may appoint as many as five new justices to the Supreme Court--and all in his image Then, the court upon which Blacks have depended for much of the civil rights gains of the past 30 years will have no liberals and probably 7 Reaganites

The fear that this could happen is becoming so bad that members of the High court itself are beginning to cast aside the propriety for which that body is well known and speaking-out.

Recently, Justice Harry Blackmum charged that the nation's highest court is "moving to the Right" philosophically, and that it is going "where it wants to go...by hook or by crook."

Blackmum further stated that soon Regan's appointed Sandra Day O'Connor, could become the "the most conservative member of the court," and that as a result of the Court's rightward trend, he (Blackmum) "is becoming a flaming liberal."

In August, Justice John Paul Stevens, one of the moderates on the Court, charged the majority is exceeding "judicial authority" to arrive at desired results.

Ever watch children at play? Perhaps you've marvelled at what a dupple and pliant thing a child's body is. But children are not more exempt from spinal displacements that may occur. And children, more than elders, are putting their bodies through the most remarkable contortions and movements all the time.

Most school children carry their books under one arm or in briefcases which weigh them down on one side. A one sided pull on the spinal column is the result. Parents should caution thier children to divide their books between both arms to equalize the pull, or carry their books in a backpack.

What about those falls my children take as they grow up. Does my child have a spinal curvature (Scoliosis) already our childrens spines house the spinal cord from the brain and if out of alignment can cause spinal nerve pressure and result in body malfunction.

A Chiropractic examination is extremely important to insure that stresses and strains and spinal distortions are nipped in the bud.

WASHINGTON REPORT

UNITED STATES SENATOR SLADE GORTON

Nowhere to Run

The recent terrorist car bombing of the American embassy in Beirut has again riveted attention on that turbulent region. Accompanying the shock and outrage at the senseless loss of life were serious questions about our ability to ensure the safety of our diplomatic personnel in Lebanon and around the world.

At the request of the State Department, Congress recently provided $232 million to upgrade security systems at all our embassies. Effective and prompt use of these funds should go a long way toward protecting American diplomatic personnel and installations. In its oversight capacity, Congress will also very likely increase its scrutiny of the State Department's security procedures and demand greater accountability and fewer excuses.

These efforts, however, will not end attacks on American embassies or other facilities. The United States is the leader of the free world. As such, we become the symbol of all that is hateful to many fanatics and terrorists, from Iran's Islamic Jihad to the Red Brigade in Italy to our own Weather Underground. Their desire to strike a blow against America and all that it represents is not going to disappear. We simply have to live with the fact that we are going to be prime targets. Knowing this, however, we must see to it that we have the best security that money and care can provide.

Our leadership position in the world also means that we cannot simply withdraw our personnel, even when we know that their presence will almost inevitably provoke these attacks. First, terrorists do not limit their activities to war zones like Beirut. American diplomatic personnel in Paris, for example, have been victimized, sometimes fatally, at least six times over the last decade. Even closer to home, last year a bomb exploded in the U.S. Capitol only a few feet from the Senate chambers. Clearly, we cannot run and we cannot hide from fanatical terrorists.

But even in strife-torn areas like Lebanon, we must maintain a visible American presence. We must do so to protect our vital strategic and economic interests in that region and to aid the thousands of Americans of Lebanese descent who return to their homeland every year.

As David Newsome, the director of the Institute for the Study of Diplomacy at Georgetown University noted recently, "We cannot, as a great nation with historic and continuing interests in the region, be forced out by such acts. We face in Lebanon a form of warfare more frustrating, tragic and mysterious than any we have ever faced. We stay there at a cost, but the cost of an abrupt withdrawal could be even greater."
